
EMOTIONAL rather than factual arguments often have a bigger part to play in decisions that are made by governing bodies than many of us realize.

There are very few decisions, for example, that can be made by any city council or the planning commission strictly in the light of cold, hard facts. There is generally the human factor on hand to sort of involve matters.

And that old saw of "the squeaky wheel gets the most grease" unfortunately then on occasion becomes the basis for decisions.

We are, of course, leading up to the newest controversial issue to hit town. That is whether a drive-in theater should be located on 14-acres of the Brynteson Ranch at Campbell and Bascom avenues.

AT THE FIRST public hearing on the matter, the meeting was rife with emotional outbursts of all sizes and shapes. All of them were greeted with great waves of applause from the partisan crowd, even if some of the arguments touched on the ridiculous.

As an old pro in covering such events, we have learned to expect that the ordinary citizens who attend en masse a council or planning commission meeting form the opposition, as Commissioner Jack Healey pointed out. They are also prone to get somewhat carried away on an emotional plane and become impatient when the official body does not act, immediately, the way they want them to.

As a resident within the sphere of influence of the proposed drive-in theater, we, personally, and perhaps selfishly, are opposed to such an operation. We would have shed no tears if the use permit had been turned down by the weary planners at 1 a.m.

ON THE OTHER hand, we commend the members of the Planning Commission for deferring action on the action on the matter until their next meeting.

There is a great deal at stake. There is no question that time is needed to study the issue with all its many ramifications. And there are many.

The case for the drive-in was ably presented by a team of experts, a civil engineer (Leo Ruth), a real estate developer (Desmond Johnson) and architect (George Raad)

They presented some hard, cold facts involving the economic aspects of the situation.

Thus something more than emotional outbursts are needed to refute 'em.

Council rejects shopping center at San Tomas-Hacienda by 3-2 vote

A divided City Council Monday night rejected plans for a large shopping center at Hacienda and San Tomas Road amid cries of "We wuz robbed" by a large crowd of vociferous supporters from the area adjacent to the proposed center.

The 3-2 vote of the council thus ended another chapter in a controversy that has set a record for length as well as audience participation. The controversy has raged off and on for almost five years.

The council meeting Monday night also probably set another record for length of a single meeting. It was 2:30 a.m. Tuesday before the council adjourned and the council members still had not finished their agenda. The council will hold an adjourned meeting on Wednesday, September 1, to tie up the loose ends.

Before the 3-2 vote turning down the plans for the shopping center at Hacienda and San Tomas, three hours were spent in the public hearing on the issue. The same cast of characters that had participated in the drama on previous occasions before the council and planning commission again had their say.

By the 3-2 vote, (Councilmen Bill Smeed and Ralph Doetsch were on the losing side with Mayor Charles Rose and Councilmen Ed Rogers and Bob McElroy on the other) the council overode the unanimous decision of the Planning Commission approving the plans as well as the recommendation of the city staff.

TEMPERS FLARE

During the hearing, tempers flared among the councilmen as well as the partisan crowd that interrupted both councilmen and counsel from time to time.

The plans for the shopping center were submitted by Topaz Builders, Inc. Chief opposition stemmed from the Turturici family, owners of Big Boy Market at Hacienda and Capri and from the Smith family, owners of the San Tomas Village center, only a short distance from the proposed new center.

The Turturici family, represented by Emory Delmas, has maintained for almost five years that it was planned to convert the present Big Boy Market into a large shopping center and claimed that it was not economically sound to develop another center so close to them.

The Smith family was represented by Attorney Richard Caputo, who reiterated the arguments of the Turturici family that another center would work a hardship on the business already existing in the area.

Members of the audience who resided in the area, maintained during the hearing that a new shopping center was needed to serve the area and were visibly embittered by the action of the City Council.

Topaz Builders, represented by Sanford Diller, attorney, had submitted a comprehensive market analysis prepared by Riches Research, Inc., a reputable research firm, which substantiated the need for the new center.

But Delmas took issue

Burglars hit Campbell Press

For the first time in its 70 years history, The Campbell Press last Thursday night was a victim of a burglary when almost $300 was taken.

The building was apparently entered through a side window which had been forced open after the screen had been removed.

The cash register was forced open as were other drawers and cabinets in the office.

The thief (or thieves) apparently were only looking for money. None of the office or other equipment was taken. But all coins, cash and currency that was in the office was removed.

The timing of the burglars was excellent. They hit The Press the only time of the month when any considerable amount of cash was on hand. The carriers had just turned in their monthly collections the day before.

Second act curtain to go up on September 7

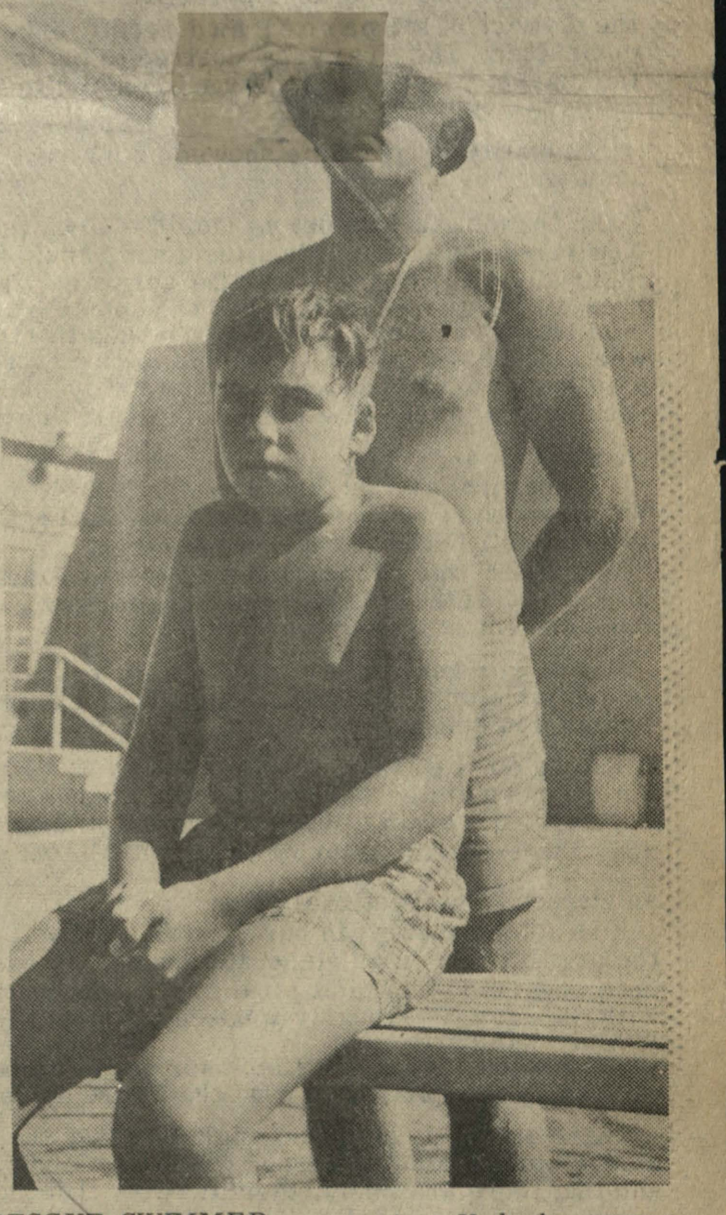
On Tuesday, September 7, Planning Commission members will take up where they left off in the early morning hours on August 16 at the first public hearing on the application for a use permit to locate a drive-in theater on the Brynteson Ranch at Campbell and Bascom avenues.

The meeting will be held on Tuesday because of the Labor Day holiday.

An overflow crowd attended the first hearing and voiced vigorous objections to the issuance of a use permit for the auto-movie at that site.

The application was filed by the Bank of America as agents for the Brynteson estate. The application specified that United California Theater will develop the property.

Another full house is expected on September 7 when the hearing on the use permit is reconvened.



RESCUE SWIMMER-- Rick Dias, 11 (sitting) son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Dias, 632 El Patio, and Dan Blaettler, lifeguard at Campbell High pool, teamed together Monday afternoon to avert a near-drowning. Rick was swimming with Ray Covington, 13, of 56 Paige, when he noticed Ray had gone under water. He had presence of mind to drag Ray to the surface where Blaettler applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. The fire department rescue crew arrived and completed the resuscitation. The youngster was taken to the hospital when he was pronounced out of danger.

Thieves get bikes

A rash of bicycle thefts have been reported to the Campbell

Nancy Mitchell, 263 Branbury Dr. reported that her bike was taken from the area near the Campbell High School pool. Lisa A. Edman, 1310 E. Campbell Ave, told police her bicycle was taken from her residence. Robby Brodsky had his sting-ray bike stolen from his front yard during the night. Cecil E. Valverde, 802 Inwood Ave. was shopping at San Tomas Market when thieves took his bike.

Parks on the creek

The Campbell Press has constantly emphasized the importance of developing the land along Los Gatos Creek into park and recreational areas.

We have only received scattered support from various segments of the community for our efforts to instill enthusiasm on the grass roots level for such a project.

No huge wave of sentiment has developed favoring such a program, we are sorry to report. Yet we are still convinced that the idea of turning the creek area into a park is a worthwhile endeavor and is deserving of the support of all citizens and the official legislative bodies of the cities and county.

Thus we will continue to press for action on this front. We know we are talking about the future, maybe some 20 years hence, before what we visualize could materialize.

But if it ever is to materialize, action must begin soon.

We are aware of the official Campbell attitude. City officials have taken the lead in focusing attention on the creek area and have constantly sought support from other agencies in order to carry out a master plan for the development.

Campbell has done an excellent job in transforming one small section (near Campbell Ave. on Gilman) into a beauty spot. The city intends to expand this section to some extent during the next year.

It is planned to remove more of the condemned houses and develop a much-needed parking area at the little park.

But the city is limited by both funds and area to extend this delightful city park to any great degree.

The park, however, gives some idea of what COULD be done on an extensive scale all along the creek.

The city also has purchased a seven-acre percolation pond near Dell Ave. along the creek. Some misunderstanding recently developed when the city began on a small scale to fill this percolation pond.

Filling the pond is necessary if the creek area in that vicinity, which includes a series of percolation ponds, could be made accessible as a recreational area.

The misunderstanding developed when some uninformed county officials felt that Campbell was filling in a marina park. They had not realized that it was necessary to fill the pond in order to provide access to the area.

The seven-acre pond was purchased by the city from the Santa Clara Valley Water Conservation District following a minor hassle over future plans for a 10-acre parcel also owned by the district. That parcel had been filled and compacted. The district desired to put in on the market because it was in excess to its needs.

The county at the time showed no interest in acquiring the 10-acres.

But the district has not yet sold the 10-acres. Now it seems possible that the county could be interested in acquiring the acreage. With Campbell's seven-acres and the county's 10, plus the 80 acres of percolation ponds that the water conservation district would make available that could be landscaped, a ready-made recreational area stretching almost to Vasona would come into being.

Another point that could be worth exploring would be the possible acquisition of the Legion property off Dell Ave. facing the creek.

We think this property has a great potential as a part of the overall park and recreational development for the creek area.

We do not know whether the Legion property is available or whether the Legion would be interested in selling.

But we do feel that, if this property was acquired and with the other improvements and developments along the creek, we would be a long way toward reaching the eventual goal of an attractive recreational area.

It is not necessary, in our opinion, to develop the creek area in an elaborate manner. It has been suggested that riding trails, and bike trails with the area just roughly landscaped would be sufficient in part.

We realize that it is difficult for people to be stirred by this picture of what the future holds.

There are many also who might feel that such a development along the creek would be a luxury and that there are many other places that the county and city tax dollars could go.

We agree. But we think that there will always be a need for recreational and park areas.

We also maintain that "open space" has become a premium in this county. In order to make any plans for the future, action must start now.

Tomorrow could be too late.

in operation.

There were some innuendos tossed hither and yon with respect to moral issues involving drive-ins. Undoubtedly there was some basis for a few of the allegations.

But, let us remember, that all people who go to auto-movies are not immoral.

We know several families, for example, where mother, dad and all the kids make a big event periodically out of attending the shows in the family car.

THAT RECENT SUMMER storm in which thunder and lightning ("just like back east",) played a bang-up part, was so unexpected that it caught many by surprise.

Posterity, for example, will never know exactly how much rainfall was recorded in Campbell during the storm.

We depend on the rain gauge of the Campbell Water Co. for the official figures for precipitation. The firm has kept the rain figures for the community for comparison purposes for many years. You can tell from the records how the area is doing on a wet or dry basis on almost any given day.

But Bob James, of the water company, reported to us that he thought this August shower caught their gauge off-guard.

It showed just something more than a trace around .03 or .05.

Bob was convinced (and we were too) that it had rained more than that.

James didn't think the gauge had been cleaned out for the new season. Something must have deflected the moisture, he figures.

But everybody knows it doesn't rain in the middle of August in California.

HUNDREDS OF BURGLARIES have been covered by us in our years of newspapering. Many times we have been on the scene with the police to shoot pictures of the damage done and shot pictures of the cops 'dusting' for fingerprints and checking for clues.

On occasion we have bawled out Chief John Morgan and his staff for not calling us when they were on the scene after a burglary was committed.

But, as Sgt. John Butler pointed out, last Friday was one time the police did not have to call us. In fact, we called them. We were on the scene first.

The Campbell Press was burglarized Thursday night, for the first time, as far as can be checked, in this newspaper's 70 years history.

Weekly newspaper plants, as a rule, don't provide too good "pickings" for would-be burglars. The market for the equipment and fixtures is rather limited.

And money is a commodity that is generally pretty scarce around such joints.

Unfortunately in our case, the burglar hit the only time during the month that the coin of the realm was at its height at our place. The carriers had just turned in their monthly collections.

The nocturnal visitors made off with all that dough and every bit of other loose change that was around.

Nothing else was taken. Just money. But our cash register and office safes will never be the same.

This is one burglary The Press managed to give complete coverage, complete with pictures, facts $$ and all that.

But, really, we are not that hard up for news.

And we can get along less drastic measures, if you please, when it comes to "making news".

Council rejects center with the report, claiming it did not prove that another shopping center was justified. Present at the hearing were Victor Riches and John Cone, of the research firm.

ON THE SPOT

Cone, who prepared the report, was subjected to such a heavy barrage of questions from Delmas that, at one time, Councilman Smeed, also an attorney, broke in to remind Delmas that it was not a court of law and he thought the "cross-examination" was out of place.

Councilman Rogers immediately disagreed with Smeed and indicated that he felt the questioning was in order. Rogers added that he felt that the report while valuable in part was "vague" in others which resulted in confusion.

The main point, Rogers said, was whether the report concluded that two centers or three were justified.

Members of the audience who spoke reiterated their claims made at previous sessions that the area needed such a center. They emphasized that 1000 people had indicated, many by petition, that they favored it.

FOUR-PHASES

The plans for the center called for a four-phase development. The first phase which had to begin in 60 days would be a 24,000 square foot market. Two other buildings housing stores plus a service station would be in the subsequent phases.

The Turturici family claimed that their new center as planned would be almost as large. Delmas emphasized that almost half of the tenants for the center were already under lease.

Among the residents at the hearing vigorously favoring the Topaz devolopment were Mrs. Curtis Michael, 1280 Burrows, and M. J. Clark, 1260 Burrows. Both claimed later that they felt that the council had really "let them down" unfarily and that they would like to take action against the council.

COMMENTS

Each councilman commented on the issue after the hearing was closed and before the vote.

McElroy opposed the center, he said, because it was too large for the area. He felt that only a part of the 8-acre parcel should be devoted to commercial enterprises.

Doetsch disagreed with McElroy and claimed that it was necessary to develop the entire area as no firm would be interested in a smaller spot.

Smeed maintained that the council should consider the recommendation of the planning commission and the staff. He said that the market analysis showed that a center was needed and that the opposition had presented nothing to offset this argument.

Rogers maintained that the report was vague and he felt that it would be economically downgrading the area, if the center was approved, in face of the plans of the Smith and Turturici families.

Rose said that he felt that before a commercial development such as was planned was approved, the entire San Tomas area should be restudied to see whether such a center would fit into the over-plan.

Then came the vote. And the curtain dropped on another act.

There were no curtain calls for the actors in the drama.

ART SHOW TO COME TO TOWN--Merchants in the Campbell Shopping Center, at Winchester Blvd. and Latimer, on Friday and Saturday, September 10-11, are sponsoring a sidewalk art show at the center.

More than 100 paintings and other art work will be exhibited the length of the sidewalk in front of the stores and the artists, members of the Pacific Independent Artists Co-operative, will be on hand to describe their work. Many of the pictures will be for sale.

The artists, all professionals in their field, will also demonstrate their skill in rendering scenes from the local area. They recently exhibited their work at the 1 West Gallery and a the Art Gallery i Willow Glen where several received awards. Pictured abov are Marion Goldman Sybil Chun, Dori Cutting, and Ver Ogilvie.

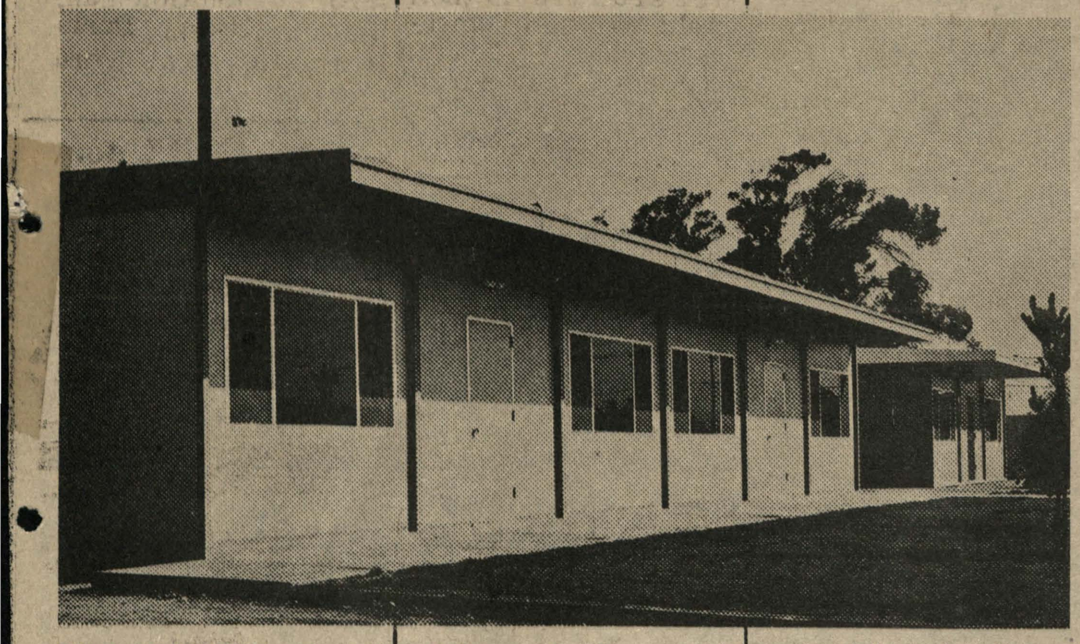
CLASSROOM
MODULUX

CLASSROOMS ON WHEELS--Workmen inspect one of the seven mobile classrooms which will be moved on various Campbell Union School district sites to supplement exsisting permenent school rooms.



ON LOCATION--One of the seven Modulux mobile classrooms is pictured above as it will appear after being placed in position on Campbell Union School District school sites.

CUSD to test carpet cost

Seven relocatable classrooms will be ready for use in Campbell Union School District August 23, with nothing required from the school district except arrangements for utilities hook-up. They can stand in one place and serve for the next 40 years, or be moved and reinstalled in less than 24 hours.

The classrooms were leased for three years at a yearly rental fee of $2,245 per building, from Modulux, Inc.--low bidder at the district's advertised bid opening last July 2. All lease payments--less than $200 a month each--accrue toward purchase of the buildings if this should be desired at some future date by the board of trustees, although this is not its current intention.

Two of the classrooms are in place at Quito School, two at Forest Hill, two at Capri and one at Sherman Oaks. Each of the relocatable buildings, constructed according to State of California specifications for permanent classrooms, consists of two end modules and one center module bolted together.

The modules are 10' x 32' and single modules are transported on flatbed trucks The end modules have a five foot overhang, so the nine foot high roof is 42 feet long. Besides the shade and weather protection of the overhang, there is complete light control and protection from both weather and vandalism from aluminum louvered, double jalousie blinds. The value of these has been proved in half the permanent schools of Campbell District, ever since architects Higgins and Root designed them for Sherman Oaks School in 1957.

Inside the classrooms there is a sense of space--960 square feet of floor space, with walls of sound absorbing insulation board covered with vinyl. The wall construction provides thermal insulation against heat and cold to save on utility costs, plus a completely washable surface which can be used as tackboard anywhere on the wall. Both walls and roof are completely sealed against moisture.

Chalkboards are made of porcelain backed with steel, and chalk does not squeak on contact. They are 24 feet long by four feet high. The accoustical ceiling is equipped with even, diffused lighting from a full ceiling fluorescent lighting system. The system is sectioned for ready access to lighting and electrical wiring.

The classrooms have electric heat with two ton pumps which serve as a cooling method in hot weather...a standard feature included in the basic price of any Modulux classroom.

The floors will be carpeted with a material that is a far cry from the luxurious thick pile favored in home decorating. Classroom carpets are woven for durability and come in a cafe' color, so tracked earth won't make them look soiled after every recess. Wear life is estimated at approximately 15 years.

Campbell trustees decided to use the opportunity offered by their leasing arrangement to try out the carpeting without a capital investment. They want to determine if maintenance costs really are low enough to make this kind of floor covering the economy they have been told it is. Installed over foam rubber backing, the carpeting together with insulated walls and accoustical ceiling provides a quiet classroom.

Roof and wall panels are a plywood core with re-inforced fiberglas coating, sealed and covered with long-lasting paint. The panels are bolted to steel frames, mounted on heavy-duty floor platforms. The complete modules are joined by bolting on the site.

HOSPITAL PHARMACIST--Robert Tefft, of 213 Victor Ave., Campbell, has been appointed pharmacist for The Good Samaritan Hospital, according to Floyd A. Sorensen. The 225-bed, non-profit hospital located between Campbell and Los Gatos is slated to open later this summer. For the past two years, Tefft has been chief pharmacist at Miles Memorial Hospital in San Mateo. He is married and the father of three children.

City Hall briefs

Although the issue concerning the proposed shopping center at San Tomas and Hacienda overshadowed the other items on the City council's heavy agenda Monday night, the council managed to act on a number of other important matters before adjourning at 2:30 a.m. Tuesday.

However, the council will hold an adjourned meeting on September 1 to handle as much unfinished business as possible before the next regular meeting on September 13.

In the marathon session, the council:

--AWARDED the contract for the construction of a storage building at the corporation yard to Manley & Wise, the lower of two bids submitted, the second time the council has called for bids. The low bid was $14,975. With the water line the cost will be $15,852. About $1500 was saved by asking for rebids, it was reported.

--APPROVED (first reading of ordinance) rezoning from R-1 to to P-Da one-acre parcel on Harriet on which will be built 10 houses as an apartment complex.

--APPROVED the annexation of 11 acres between Westmont and Hacienda but deferred action until September 13 on another annexation of 3-plus acres at Winchester and Sunnyoaks, when it was reported that Bud Tunstall, owner of three parcels of the area and instigator of the annexation, had sold the land to the county for expressway purposes.

The annexation included two lots on Old Orchard Road that had been tacked onto the strip. Residents from Old Orchard attended the meeting en masse to protest this annexation, claiming that they wanted "to be left alone."

White Oaks should not be closed as proposed by the state in expanding Highway 17 and directed the staff to work with the state in solving the traffic problem at the interchange.

--ENDORSED the proposal for down-proposal for plans for an off-street parking district for downtown Campbell as presented by Elmer D'Angelo of the engineering firm. The plan calls for 850 spaces to be developed on the north and south side of Campbell Ave. from Winchester to Railway. The cost for the purchase and and improvement of the land needed was estimated to cost $1,200,000 which breaks down to a $2.50 to $3.00 per square foot assessment for those property owners within the district.

--APPROVED the assessments for curb, gutter and sidewalks against the property owners on the Esther Ave. and Campbell Ave. projects.

--APPROVED the contracts for street maintenance for Dunster, Alice, Carlyn, Milton, Tubby and Fewtrell avenues. It was estimated that the street improvement would cost about $30,000.

--ADOPTED resolutions and ordinance setting the tax rate at $1.00 per $100 assessed valuation for general funds and 27-cents for bonds and $1,693,785 as the amount necessary to meet municipal expenses for the fiscal year.

--REAPPOINTED Harry Lee to a four-year term on the Planning Commission.

--APPROVED a pay telephone to be installed at the City Hall.

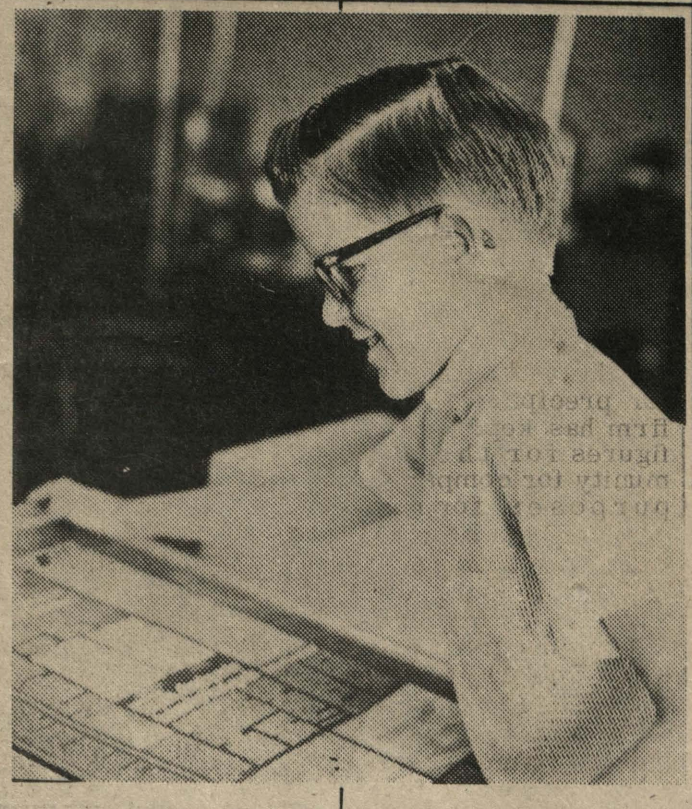
--ADOPTED an ordinance changing zoning from C-1-S to C-2-S on property on Hamilton Ave., just off Winchester and gave first reading to ordinance regulating coin-operated car wash businesses.

West Valley gets heavy sign-up

With the start of fall classes still three weeks away, registration at West Valley College was described as "very heavy."

Jerry H. Girdner, dean of student personnel services, said a total of 2478 students--1541 day and 937 extended day--had been programmed through last Thursday. Girdner estimated that the final total would be "at least 4500 students, a 50 percent increase over the 3000 enrolled in the college's first session in September, 1964.

About 2500 new students had applied for admission through Aug. 9, Dean Girdner said. Most of this group will constitute the freshman class for 1965-66, he said, and last year's returning students will constitute history's first sophomore class at West Valley.



YOUNG NEWSPAPER MAN...Elwood Wilson, 11 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson of 2166 Quito Rd., looks over the "negative" of the front page of last weeks Press. Elwood has been named the first carrier of the month of August as a result of the fine service he gives his Quito area customers. He turned in nearly 60 new subscribers during the Campbell Press' summer circulation contest.

Elwood will begin the sixth grade next month at El Quito Park School. He has just completed a summer session where he studied math and science. Elwood's hobbies include swimming, coin collecting, and playing the viola in the Moreland School District string orchestra.

Last week Elwood and several other Press carriers went to Uvas Meadows Recreation Center for a one day carriers' outing. Other carriers attending the Uvas Meadows outing included Tim Fuller of 1472 Picadilly Place, Dud (Craig) Chicoine of 563 W. Rincon; Mark Brusashetti of 80 El Caminito; Joe Giorgianni of 737 Ricky Court; Ricky McLafferty of 4586 Alex Drive; Jeff Coker of 1797 Campbell Ave., and Steve Maurer of 865 Stonehurst Drive.

Out-of-state students to pay more at SJS

Tuition increases for out-of-state residents will affect approximately 200 students at San Jose State College this fall.

In June the California State Colleges Board of Trustees increased the annual tuition costs for out-of-state residents from $500 annually to $540. The new rate will go into effect with the fall semester.

The increase was recommended by the Coordinating Council of Higher Education, the State College Presidents and the Academic Senate of the State Colleges.

Not affected by the increase are the more than 600 students from foreign countries now on the SJSC campus. The tuition rate for foreign students is $255 per year.

Menus for the working wife

A special providence looks out for the modern woman who combines homemaking and a business or a profession. Not for her the long, leisurely hours of cooking foods which require elaborate advance preparation. This holds true also for the young mother with small children. Today's living, as handled by housewives the country over, takes advantage of modern food processing, packaging, freezing and canning. There is no need for dull meals with today's variety of prepared foods. Here are a few recipes for the working housewife.

ROCK CORNISH HEN WITH RICE

4 Rock Cornish hens (quick frozen)
2/3 cup wild rice or whole grain rice
2 tbsp. butter for rice.
1 pt. boiling water poured on
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1/4 cup butter
salt, pepper, garlic salt

Once thawed, the hens and trimmings can be ready for the table in little more than an hour. Clean them inside and out according to directions on package. Sprinkle with salt, stuff with crumpled paper toweling to dry cavity. Wipe outside of birds, sprinkle with garlic salt or seasoning salt. Truss well. Melt butter in deep skillet. Brown the birds in skillet one at a time, turning carefully. Remove to deep casserole or Dutch oven. Cover tightly, reduce heat and cook until tender. (45-60 minutes.)

Wash rice, dry on paper towel. Melt butter in deep saucepan or skillet. Stir rice into butter until each grain is well-coated. Add water seasoned with bouillon cubes. Bring to boil. Cover tightly. Reduce heat. Cook gently until each grain is tender, not mushy. Rice will be done at the same time the birds are cooked. Serves 4.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS
DISTRICT IV
Jeane Engdahl

Many Blue Birds from the Campbell area "had the time of their lives" recently at Blue Bird Day Camp, held at Camp Sycamore at Steven's Creek Park. They learned a great deal about the food and customs of Hawaii.

This very successful program was under the direction of Pat Bradburn. Maida Nadin was co-director, Jane Young taught the songs and the Hula Dance to the girls. The tropical food was planned by Lou Burd, and the Polynesian crafts were organized by Dorothy Ishimatsu. Helping to carry out the program were several counselors and program aides.

The program aides are older Camp Fire Girls who want to help in the training of the Blue Birds. Members of the Horizon Club also acted as aides to the program.

Caring for the younger children of the counselors was Barbara Atkins and some of the program aides. Letha Panick was nurse for this session of Day Camp. The general response to the week was terrific!

School office opens

The Moreland School District office, 4710 W. Campbell Ave., will be open beginning Monday, August 30. Any new residents in the area are urged to register their children before the beginning of school Sept. 13.

TO PRESENT CONCERT - Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Del Carlo of the Campbell Music Conservatory will present an outdoor Estate Pops Concert on Saturday, August 28, in the gardens of the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. O. Smith, 2302 Highland Park Ln. The Del Carlos will present selections on the piano, organ and accordian.

Bandit gets $80 in holdup

A nattily dressed bandit wearing a checked sports jacket and grey slacks got away with $80 in the armed robbery of Lorrie's Fashions in Kirkwood Plaza, 1600 W. Campbell Ave. last Thursday.

Campbell Police said the robber, came and went several times into the store, apparently waiting for the right moment for the holdup. He produced a pistol when the owner, Mrs. Mary-Keenan, 45, was alone in the store at about 6 p.m. and demanded money from the cash register.

Underprivileged youngsters get 'head start

Stories of undernourished children, little girls with one dress, and bright children severely hampered by a language barrier are being reported to Project Head Start by teachers, aides, and volunteer workers.

The project ends August 27, and teachers are making their final reports to Dr. Dale Miller, county director of the project.

Mrs. Celestine Palmer of the Longfellow School Center in San Jose commented, "These children were truly given a Head Start in the few weeks of the program. In a public school class of 35, many of them would take until November or December or longer to reach the point where they are now. If a child gets behind in the first or second grade he can be lost forever. Head Start can prevent failures before they enter school."

Mrs. Lily Chin from the Gilroy Center recalled meeting a boy of 10 in one labor camp who was preparing for his fourth try at the first grade.

"He isn't stupid, but he thinks he is stupid and he acts and talks accordingly much of the time."

She said the boy's big problem was the language barrier. His family spoke nothing but Spanish, and the boy lacked confidence that he could learn English well enough to read with his classmates.

Mrs. Chin pleaded for understanding of her young charges.

She stated, "Most of these Head Start children will be classified as slow learners when they enter school. This shouldn't be done because they are really bright children, but many of them have this severe language handicap."

Dr. Miller promised the five women workers that each Head Start child's classroom and health records will be available to their school teachers. The Head Start teacher's name and telephone number will be included.

Mrs. Chin told of children so badly nourished that they bled from the nose and ears. She spoke of children whose teeth were so bad they couldn't eat apples or drink cold milk.

All of the women workers told Dr. Miller that the parents had been disturbed about sending their children to Head Start without new clothes. Mrs. Doris Palmer said that as she rang doorbells recruiting children for the classes the mothers nearly always were eager to enroll the youngsters. Yet their next question always was "Will they need special clothes?"

The mothers said their meager budgets couldn't stand a double purchase of school clothes. Yet somehow most of the little Head Starters came to class with one neat outfit.

Jaguars open at Village

"The Jaguars," winner of last spring's county-wide Battle of the Combos, will provide live dance music at re-opening of the Santa Clara Valley Youth Village Friday night, August 27.

The facility, open to all county senior high school students, has been dark during August. It will remain open Wednesdays and Fridays until opening of school September 13, according to the Rev. Walter E. Schmidt, S.J., Village founder-director.

After school opens, the facility will revert to its regular school year schedule, operating on Friday and Saturday evenings and featuring live music and entertainment.

School administrators learn use of fire extinguishers

Custodians and admistrators from Campbell Union School District schools located within the City of Campbell recently attended a fire safety class with many practical features.

Before they were finished, Campbell Fire Chief George R. Maxwell had them taking fire extinguishers into their own hands and putting out various kinds of actual fires.

Hamilton Principal Claude Walsh and Administration Building Custodian Herman Lampe commented that this first-hand experience was a chief benefit of the class and demonstration. Many custodians naver have actually handled a fire extinguisher, they said, and this actual use to put out real fires quickly broke down their fears about not knowing how to use the extinguishers successfully in emergency.

Fire Chief Maxwell explained all procedures in extinguishing various types of fires and told how to take measures to prevent fires.

Lampe explained that just the difference in trigger power in different extinguishers could be a problem: some shoot out their contents with greater power to a greater distance than others. Those attending learned what to expect from different kinds of extinguishers.

Other practical tips were to work upwind from a fire while trying to put it out, to know where doors are and where the firefighting equipment is located in each school building: to be sure the doorstop catches meant to hold doors open really work securely so the doors can't slam back closed when children are trying to get out.

Administrators were advised that teachers should not try to go back into a fire to bring someone out: this job is best done by trained firemen, who otherwise might have to rescue two persons instead of the original one trapped inside.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Questions and Answers

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

By Gladstone A. Boquist

Q. I've noticed that one digit of my social security number is incorrect on my W-2 form. Would this have any effect on credit for wages on my social security record?

A. Possibly. Social security records are posted from your employer's quarterly tax returns, and not from the W-2. You should check with your employer to see if the correct number was reported on his quarterly tax return. If not, the employer should send in corrective information on Form 941C.

Q. Why is it necessary for a woman to file a change of name card with the Social Security Administration when she gets married?

A. Social Security records must be accurate to ensure proper payment of benefits to the right person, and identity of the person is very important. Each number is assigned to only one person, under one name. If an employer reports a different name from that to which a certain number is assigned, a question is raised as to whether the right person is receiving credit for the earnings reported.

Q. Why do you urge people to check on their social security account every two or three years?

A. If an error should occur in reporting or crediting earnings to your account, it is much easier to correct, if it is found within this time. If it goes beyond three years, three months and fifteen days, it may not be possible to correct the error.

Q. My husband gets social security retirement payments. I am 58 years of age and never worked. A few months ago I became disabled. Can I receive disability payments from my husband's record?

A. No. In order to receive disability benefits, you must meet the work requirements. Disability payments cannot be made to you based on your husband's record.

Q. My husband and I have two children under age 18. My husband works under social security and provides most of the family income. However, for the past five years I have worked under social security to help with the family expenses. I would like to know what benefits would be payable to my family in the case of my death.

A. Since you are working and helping support your family, social security benefits would be payable to your minor children. Also, your husband would be entitled to a lumpsum death benefit.

ON CAPITOL HILL

with "Charlie" Gubser

When Russia, France, and other countries refused to pay their special United Nations' assessments, many of us argued for the meet- us argued for meeting the crisis head-on believing the UN would be stronger for having done so.

Our national leadership determined otherwise and a showdown was postponed when we purchased UN bonds. It was postponed again through a ridiculous session of the General Assembly in which not a single vote was taken in order to avoid a challenge of Russia's right to vote. Last year Congress unanimously called for enforcement of the World Court advisory opinion which said any nation two years delinquent in assessments could be denied its vote. Just a few weeks ago our State Department officials were saying officials were saying that the United States would never yield on this principle.

In his first speech to the General Assembly, Ambassador Goldberg threw in the towel. Then, in a futile face-saving attempt, he served notice that if the UN was to ignore a clear rule of law in the case of Russia that we might esercise a similar option in the future.

This could be the beginning of the end for the United Nations. The practical fact that our closest allies, including England, would not support us and we simply didn't have the votes to win does not alter the fact that if this happens once it will happen again. An organization supposedly based upon the rule of law cannot be effective under such circumstances!

In 1962 the United States had an unusual chance to win its point. Muhammad Zafrulla Khan of Pakistan, our staunch friend, was presiding as President of the Assembly. Haiti was then in arrears and her vote could have been challenged on a roll call. Khan, it is rumored, would have ruled that Haiti could not vote and a two-thirds vote would then be necessary to overrule the Chair. But at the last minute Haiti paid up and the chance never materialized. Dr. Carlos Sosar-Rodriquez of Venezuela, the succeeding President, would not agree to make such a ruling if Russia and France, then in arrears, were challenged. The current President, Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana, has also refused. Thus, instead of having to muster a one-third vote to uphold a ruling of the Chair, we must now garner two-thirds on a motion from the Floor to deny delinquents their votes.

Why did we lack the necessary votes to uphold the rule of law? Obviously our close allies are less afraid to offend us than France and Russia. Small nations, who represent the vast majority of UN voting strength, are unafraid of consequences when they vote against the U. S. and are reluctant to offend the communist bloc. This suggests that we are too inclined toward acquiescent, apologetic, and defensive diplomacy.

The rule of International Law as an instrument of peace has failed a major test. This points up the need for an organization to complement the UN like the Council of Free Nations suggested by former President Hoover. In it the principles of freedom--and the responsibilities which go with it--would apply equally to all members.

Get flu shots this winter

The Santa Clara County Tuberculosis and Health Association is joining with local physicians and public agencies in advising all citizens to get 'flu shots this winter.

Emphasis is being placed on the possibility of a new influenza epidemic this year, according to Dr. William Thomas of Sunnyvale, chairman of the Respiratory Disease Committee of the Santa Clara County Tuberculosis and Health Assoc.

Dr. Thomas said that the U.S. Public Health Service has advised that there may be outbreaks of both Type A and Type B influenza in the United States this winter. Persons who suffer from chronic diseases, persons in the older age bracket, pregnant women and patients in Nursing Homes were also advised to receive annual immunization.

Star-spangled way to send a son to college

Educators expect a year of college will cost at least $2,500 by the time the class of '76 don their freshman beanies.

But you can get it for less by buying Series E Savings Bonds now. That's because Bonds pay you back $4 at maturity for every $3 you invest.

Bonds are a good deal in another way, too. Because they help preserve your son's freedom to use his education. Uncle Sam makes good use of the money, safeguarding our interests around the world.

If you like, you can build your college fund automatically by buying Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

All you need is a Payroll Savings Application and a promising youngster.

Keep freedom in your future with
U. S. SAVINGS BONDS

Grass Roots

Don't forget chrysanthemums

1. Last call for feeding camellias. Fertilize them now with the camellia food your C.A.N. nurseryman recommends, and then confine your care to regular watering and disbudding to encourage mammoth flowers.

2. Prune rasberries, loganberries and boysenberries by cutting to the ground canes that bore fruit this year, and loosely winding the new growth around the trellis.

3. Shade trees may be planted now, and will develop a good root system before winter begins. The August sun will let you know where you need them. Specimen trees are available in containers now at your C.A.N. nursery. You can see what they look like in full leaf.

4. It isn't too early to start planting native shrubs and trees. The low, spreading varieties of ceanothus (Wild Lilac) make handsome ground covers and produce clusters of bright blue flowers in the spring.

5. For baskets of bloom in December, plant seeds of early-flowering Sweet Peas now. Sow seeds thickly in rich soil, and cover the seed beds with wire until the seedlings are 4-6 inches high.

Nothing says "Autumn" in house or in garden like great, rich-colored drifts of chrysanthemums. If you've already planted enough of these fall beauties, you have nothing to do but keep them watered, fed at frequent intervals, and sprayed if necessary. Taller growing kinds should be tied securely to stakes. For extra-large flowers, be sure to disbud your plants, leaving only one bud per stem. Don't feed plants after flower buds begin to show color.

If, however, you neglected to plant your 'mums earlier this year--or if you didn't plant enough of them--don't despair. Nurseries that are members of the California Association of Nurserymen now have a large selection of bushy chrysanthemum plants in one-gallon cans, fresh from the growers and ready to set out now.

These well-branched plants have been specially grown to give you the maximum of bloom, and since chrysanthemums never object to being moved, they will settle into your garden and keep on growing vigorously for a spectacular show.

If you would like to cascade your 'mums downwards, this is the time of year to buy them already trained that way.

Plant your chrysanthemums in a sunny spot in well-prepared soil, making sure you work in a liberal amount of peat moss if the soil is too sandy or too heavy. A sprinkling of bone meal just before planting is advisable.

Retired Manpower Club serves men 62 and over

Men, 62 years of age and over, who have retired and are tired of it, are urged to register with the Retired Manpower Club for part time work. According to Clair L. Churchman, founder of the organization, there are more calls for men to work than there are men registered. "Numerical age doesn't make so much difference," Churchman pointed out." A man is just as capable at 62 as he was at 61."

The club was started by Churchman in October, 1963, with the help of some other West Valley men who feel as Churchman does that retirement should not mean idleness. The other men were Charles Smith, retired industrialist from Saratoga: Charles Rose, mayor of Campbell: and Ed Haller, formerly associated with Sterling Lumber Co. in Los Gatos.

The sole function of the club is to help older men find jobs. The club is a non-profit organization. The few expenses it does have are paid by membership dues, which are $2 a year. Churchman investigated the problem of old-age idleness in this area. He discovered that public and private employment agencies alike "do very little" to help older persons find work. Churchman's theory is that Retired Manpower Clubs such as this one "can go into the surburban areas but they won't work in the cities." The advantage of surburban areas is that there are seldom any other employment services to compete with.

Job openings are available for older men as plumbers, carpet layers, lawn installers, apartment managers, handymen, electricians, waiters, cement workers, clothing salesmen, cabinet makers and others.

"A man gets a certain 'dignity' from working," Churchman said. "It's surprising how many older men are idle and want to work," Churchman seems to feel there's a life-giving quality about keeping occupied. "That's the reason why more men die off young rather than women: the women have things they can do after the age of 62, like sewing and knitting."

Senior citizens who want to work are invited to contact Churchman at 354-1678. He can also be reached by mail at 209 Milbrae Lane, Apt. 4, Los Gatos. Persons who want to hire an older man are also invited to call him. There is no charge to the employer for using the club's services.
